The Unterhofer family has always been passionate about wine and has focused on the ‘Lagrein island’ in the Gries neighbourhood. Established in 2001, the Trogerhof estate is right on the top of the Santa Maddalena hill. While its establishment dates back to 1278, the current management practices applied to viticulture are of a centuries-old tradition, and the Zisser family pays special attention to the Classico within its wine range.

The Ramoser family has been growing wine since 1930 on the charming Santa Maddalena hill. Their winery from 1700 is also worth a visit. The Ramoser family has always been involved in the management of the vines and the bottling of the wine.

The Ansitz Waldgries estate is located opposite the Santa Maddalena hill at the start of the Neighbourhood: Santa Maddalena hill. It is in the use of the family’s eighth generation and their two beautiful daughters. In 2016 they renovated the tasting parlour, the ‘Skywine Pavillon’, which offers biodynamic wine-tasting. Waldgries is well worth a visit and a gander into the wines that make Bolzano a city of wine.

Rene and Rudi Ramoser are among the country’s most important winegrowers and their wines are awarded with numerous medals. Their secret is a ‘golden triangle’: sunny exposure, sandy loam soils and a large volume of work. The Ramoser family is known for its exquisite wine, which is synonymous with classic Bolzano’s lagrein wines.

The Ramoser family farms 12 hectares, 2/3 of which belong to the estate. Lagrein 2,000 bottles, S. Maddalena 5,000 bottles. Total production: 15,000 bottles/year.

The Ramoser family’s journey into wine production was started in the 1970s by Josef Mayr-Nusser (Bolzano, 277 December 1910 - Erlangen, 24 February 1945) did not swear to a viniculture career. His son Ernst Mayr-Nusser, the winemaster, continued his father’s legacy and expanded the estate into the nearby Santa Maddalena hill. From 1979 on, the estate was passed on to his sons René and Rudi. These two, together with their family members, started their own journey in the world of wine.

The Ramoser family focuses on quality and sustainability. In 2016, they opened a new tasting room, the ‘Skywine Pavillon’, which is located opposite the beautiful Santa Maddalena hill. The building, which features a glass roof, offers visitors a unique experience. The Skywine Pavillon offers biodynamic wine-tasting and a variety of wines from the Ramoser estate.

The Ramoser family pays special attention to the Classico within its wine range. Their wines are known for their balanced acidity, complexity, and depth. The Ramoser estate is a true representation of Bolzano’s wine heritage, and their wines are synonymous with the region’s terroir.
