Bolzano/Bozen, the wine town

Bolzano looks back on a long winegrowing tradition. Today more than 20 private wine estates and one winegrowers' cooperative produce superlative wines grown on the steep mountainsides and lower vineyards in and around the town. The town's best-known wines are red, above all the dark and muscular Lagrein and the lighter, fruity St. Magdalener.

Spectacular south-east to south-west facing vineyards overlooking the Bolzano valley basin range from cool high altitude locations to warm sites the heart of the town. The hamlet of St. Magdalena and its vineyards with the Dolomites behind is one of the most photographed vinescapes.

St. Magdalena village festival

The morainal hill of St. Magdalena at the foot of the Ritten mountain on the north-eastern outskirts of Bolzano has given its name to one of South Tyrol's most favourite red wines, the St. Magdalener. Once a year on the Feast Day of Mary Magdalene the hamlet becomes transformed into a fairground as wine estates open their cellars and plenty of regional culinary delights are available with entertainment supplied by local traditional bands. This is an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with the character and traditions of this rural town district.

The classic St. Magdalener wine

The village of S. Maddalena opens its doors to the public! A day dedicated to the appreciation of S. Maddalena classico wines. The wine-producers of S. Maddalena classico invite all to a tasting of this wine so closely associated with Bolzano itself, the tasting being accompanied by some delicious 'taster' dishes. The event takes place at Hotel Eberle. During the day guides will illustrate the splendour of the frescoes of the small S. Maddalena church. A themed walking route will give the opportunity to experience and be informed about the various phases of vine and wine cultivation during the year – from the pruning of vines, through the blossoming period, to the grape reaching full maturity, to the harvest time, and finally to the bottling of the final product in the winecellars.

From the grape to the wine

Nature sets the rhythm which repeats itself year upon year, from pruning and tying the shoots to the flowering through to the harvest. The first buds burst on the vines in mid April, after which discreet scented blossoms develop quickly and soon become embryonic grape clusters.

Throughout the summer the vegetation needs to be kept trimmed and excessive grapes removed. The rest is up to nature, for plenty of sunshine and sufficient rainfall are indispensable to obtain high quality wines.

The potential quality of the wine is apparent at harvest time. The grapes are crushed and the juice left to ferment in tanks or casks under the expert and watchful eye of the winemaker. Each winery has its own closely guarded secrets.
